VENEZUELANS UNITED.

Determined to Maintain the Rights of

Their Republic. WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. - Venezuelan newspapers up to Dec. 31, received here today, show that the boundary line dispute brought forward prominently by President Cleveland's message to Congress continues to be the topic which is absorbing public attention in that country. The papers contain extracts of the message, reports of public meetings approving the President's action and patriotic and stirring editorials applauding it. The editorial comments breathe a spirit of loyalty and unity that shows the feeling of the people on the subject. Some of the newspapers print portraits of Presidents Monroe and Cleveland, the former being named as the founder of the doctrine which bears his name, and the latter as upholder of the great continental principle. It is pointed out as a singular coincidence that President Cleveland's message on the Venezuelan question was sent to Congress on the sixty-fifth anniversary Germany, the English government has of the death of Bolivar. Secretary Olney also comes in for a good deal of praise and commendation, and telegrams in the Caracas newspapers from all over Venezuela commend the attitude of the President and his Secretary of State. There was a tremendous gathering to express the manifestation of approval by citt-zens of Caracas on the 25th of December, at which 20,000 persons were present, including the French, Italian and Spanisa colonists. Dr. Eloy G. Gonzales delivered an address, which was responded to by the Minister of the Interior. The spanish colonists have offered their services to the government in the event of breaking out of hostilities with life, and that price was peace, and perhaps Great Britain. A popular manner of in-fluencing the public and keeping up its spirit is by means of manifestos issued by the various societies, and a number of the latter Free State, have been great armed camps nave been received here. explain in some detail the boundary line question dispute, protest against the conduct of England, offer the people and the government of the United States testimony of gratitude for the opportune help given and ask the executive power to sustain and defend the rights of the republic with moderation and firmness. The disposition of the people, as expressed through the press, is to follow the United States in the matter at issue, and await the report of the Venezuelan boundary commission.

A Venezuelan Consul's Views.

LONDON, Jan. 10 .- In an interview to-day with Mr. N. Geach Burch, the consul for Venezuela, who has just returned to London from South Africa, the latter is quoted as saying he did not think the United States would support the Venezuelan boundary claim a whit beyond what was equitable and just. Mr. Burch added: "The United States commission must have a beneficial result and compel Great Britain to disclose the ground for her claims to the Schomburg line. But, if the United States wishes to make the commission unassailable, it should appoint one or two European members of the commission. The chances are that the present situation will lead to an interchange of ideas which will result in the resumption of diplomatic relations. It is obvious that war would be very disastrous to a young country like Venezuela, even if was backed by the United States. I do not elleve that the United States could be so ill-advised as to make Venezuela the scene of war, for in that case American protection would be disastrous to the private commercial interests of the country, whatever the result of the conflict. From any other point of view except that of conducing to an intelligent mutual intente between Great Britain and Venezuela for a specific settlement, intervention of the United States would be disastrous."

Britons Now Favor Arbitration. LONDON, Jan. 10 .- The movement in favor of arbitrating the Venezuelan question with the United States is growing day by day. The Westminster Gazette, after having interviewed statesmen of all parties, bankers and others having inportant interests at stake, says this afternoon: "Everywhere there were enthusiastl: expressions in favor of the proposal to establish a permanent court of arbitration." From dinates who have had recent interviews with the Foreign Office it is learned that there is a decided change of sentiment there, and that the unbending antagonism to arbitrate the Venezuelan boundary dispute which was first snown in high circles. has almost completely disappeared and that the matters look more satisfactory than they have at any time since the dispute Lord Playfair on Arbitration.

LONDON, Jan. 10.-The Chronicle this norning has an interview with Lord Playfair, formerly Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons and president of the Council, in which he strongly supports the idea of permanent tribunal of arbitration. He believed, he said, that the legislatures of both the United States and Great Britain would adopt the principle, but that would not stop the agitation over the Monroe doctrine. It must be remembered, he coned, that it was England which drove the foreigners out of America. She was, roe doctrine. He suggested that England and America meet in conference and arrive at some definition of the limits of the Mon-

Ready for Conciliation.

LONDON, Jan. 11 .- The Times has an editorial this morning supporting the views contained in the dispatch from G. W. Smalley, its New York correspondent, against a permanent agreement for arbitration. The Times, however, urges the government not to delay the publication of the papers on Venezuela. "We have been ready for con-ciliation," says the Times, "all along. America does not show a similar disposition, and it does not seem extravagant to maintain that the first move in that direction can hardly be experted from us." All Support Crespo.

PARIS, Jan. 10 .- The Gaulois this morning publishes an interview with ex-President Guzman Bianco, of Venezuela, in which he denies any connection with the insurrection in Venezuela, and adds: "In the struggle to maintain the integrity of our rights, all parties are amalgamated into a national party, which supports President Crespo.'

WANTED AMERICAN SUPPORT. President Kruger Is Reported to Have Appealed to Cleveland.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 .- The London correrespondent of a local paper cables as follows: "The Times permits M. De Blowitz to discuss seriously possible aid by England to France in case of an Anglo-German war for the recovery of Alsace-Lorraine. Doubtless anything is possible with the pain-racked autocrat of Berlin, and we have no means of knowing-sixty or more editors now being in German prisons for lese majesty-what the real opinion of the German people is. It may be, too, that the Kaiser is really in accord with Russia, and that war may be forced upon the most trivial excuse. In that case, the beginning of the long-feared chaos may be at hand. Otherwise, there is no immediate danger of because the Kalser's threat has been instantly met by the English order for the

But while the Premier is a singularly self-absorbed and opinionated man, he is an Endish patriot, and will be elastic on a comparatively immaterial point, while firm as adamant in a direction of real importance to his country. England's real or fancled title to some hundreds of thousands of square miles in Venezuela will be waived if the suzerainty of Great Britain in the new empire in South Africa is at stake. The cynical tone of the Times's editorial this morning-the Thunderer being obviously inspired from Downing street since the beginning of the controversy-is not altogether hopeful of a willing change in the Premier's former policy, but it shows change, and that itself is hopeful. "I have been notified from Berlin that President Kruger appealed by cable simultaneously to Germany and to the United States at the time of the first news of Jameson's raid. His message to the President of the United States asked for the moral support of the great American republic against what he regarded as a British plot to subvert the independence of the South African republic. The next day after the alleged dispatch of this message to President Cleveland, Embassador Bayard called at the Foreign Office here, possibly to make representations to Lord Salisbury on the basis of President Kruger's appeal. The impression is universal in well-informed circles here that the invasion of the Transvaal was, indeed, a plot of Cecil Rhodes, with the ultimate object of the establishment of a general South African re-

In turning from that story of threat and dread and danger and looking over all the British possessions there can be found none not convuised with fear for Jameson, indignation at the British government and reparation for either a race war or rebelon, we cannot say which. Bechuansland has been the quietest, because the least poplated, but it has been petitioning for mercy or Jameson, and irritating rumors of a threatened cavairy raid from there have dis-turbed the British and Dutch alike. Natal has been intensely excited. In Cape Colony meeting on behalf of Jameson was abandoned lest feeling should run too high. The people have insisted that full honors of war e paid to Jameson. The true condition of this great colony may be judged from the fact of women and children stampeding into the towns in ox carts, while armed bands have been crossing the border toward

It is learned from that quarter that Jameson and Sir John Willoughby are likely to be brought to London for trial. The mere discussion of such a project shows how the entire situation is in Africa, especially in Cecil Rhodes's private colony at the Cape. The trouble in Africa is over for present, but no one can say more than that t is understood in banking circles in this ity that Chamberlain has notified the British South Africa Company that unless thodes can clear his skirts of all trace of onnection with the conspiracy by which Jameson used the company's men to buccaneer in Transvaal, the charter of the company will be revoked. For what he will say, being stripped of his commercial as well as official honors, the world must wait. Meantime it is evident that the days of the great chartered semireval trading com-panies are over. Through such companies England compassed India, all western Canada and a large part of Africa. By the same means she failed in Transvaal. That method of world-grabbing is ended at Johannesburg. The day of great chartered ompanies as land grabbers has closed in English history.

MORGAN'S RESOLUTION.

The Alabamian Wants Congratulations Sent to the Transvaal. WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 .- Senator Morgan, the former chairman of the committee on foreign relations, offered the following resolution in the Senate to-day, and it was referred to the foreign relations committee: "Resolved, That the people of the United States, through their representatives in Congress assembled, convey to the President and the people of the Republic of Transvaal their carnest congratulations on their success in establishing free representative government, republican in form, and in their opposition to any foreign power that denies to them the full enjoyment of their rightful liberties. The people of America having realized through the favor of the God of nations the blessings of government based on the consent of the governed, entertain with confidence the pleasing hope and belief that the principles of self-government will be securely established through the influence of the Republic of France, in her colonies and the republics of Liberia and the Transvaal, founded by the people of Africa, and that those republics will foster and give firm support to the peaceful progress of Christian civilization in the new and vast field now being opened to the commerce and institutions of all the nations of the earth throughout that great continent. "Resolved, That the President of the United States is requested to communicate this action of Congress to the President of the Transvaal Republic." WILL SOON GO TO TURKEY.

Miss Barton Will Start to Relieve

Armenians in Two Weeks. BOSTON, Jan. 10.-It was learned here today through Mr. Hagob Bogigian, who is prominently connected with the Armenian relief movement, that Miss Clara Barton, secretary of the Red Cross Society, will start for Turkey on her mission of relief to the suffering Armenians within two weeks. This decision was reached at a conference held in New York yesterday, at which Mr. Bogigian, Philip Moen, of Worcester, Spencer Traske, of New York, Miss Barton and Rev. Judson Smith, D. D., of the American board, were present. The gentlemen mentioned represent committees engaged in raising the required funds for Miss Barton's work, and on the latter's consent to sail as soon as she received $50,000 they pledged that amount, feeling sure it can be raised immediately. Miss Barton will take fifteen assistants, three or four of whom will be women, and will locate in Constantinople, and after a survey of the field will send her agents

TRUST THROWS OUT OF WORK FOR A MONTH 8,000 IN INDIANA.

Terre Haute Man Sent to Jail for Hugging Wactory Girls-Anderson Married Man Elopes.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. MUNCIE, Ind. Jan. 10 .- A Muncie gentleman closely allied with the window glass trade caused quite a commotion to-day by the following statement relative to the promised shut down which is advertised to occur to-morrow night. The gentleman said: "You see the market has been slow for several weeks past, and the Western combination for some reason was anxious to immediately unload a lot of stock on the market, and to do this they decided to call the meeting and announce the decision as reached. The brokers would realize the natural result of a shut-down, and thinking that glass would take a big boost would plunge, so to speak, and soon goble up the stock. This is what the manufacturers want, and just as soon as the stock gets down to the desired point the whistles will blow. I don't think the factories will be idle one week, but the bluff may go longer and possibly occupy the four weeks. On the other hand, it would not surprise me if on Saturday evening the men are instructed to be at work as usual on Sunday night. Thomas F. Hart, manager the Western Manufacturers' Association, stated that the shut-down would take place to-morrow night as advertised and that not one pane of window glass will be made in the United States for a period of four weeks. Mr. Hart says that there is about 8,000 men employed in the window glass factories of Indiana alone. As to the hardships the mid- | train from Logansport is clearing the track. winter shut-down will work on the men, Mr. Hart stated that the blowers make big wages and all have bank accounts, or should have, but the common laborers no doubt would suffer. While they could not refuse to work as a whole union, it is equally true that the glass workers can refuse as individuals" to work any longer than they elect, and it is hinted that enough of them will exercise this privilege to close down most of the plants May 30, and if so the companies will be short on glass when its need is most pressing. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. KOKOMO, Ind., Jan. 10.-At the lunacy trial of Joseph Calkins, the Russiaville man who did such bloody execution among the officers with an axe, a shocking story came out. Shortly before the officers entered the house Calkins roasted a lot of pet birds on the red-hot stove, burned the feathers from the beds and pillows, and was about to place his six-month-old baby on the stove as sagrifice, saying that must be done to drive out the evil spirits. Calkins's six-teen-year-old son aided him. When the officers burst in the door the boy attacked them with a club, while the maniac father swung his axe. Calkins was brought to this ity on the cars, and the boy followed on foot, reaching here late at night, and ask-ing to be locked in the cell with his father. Calkins moved here only recently, having been wealthy at one time, but lost his fortune in speculation. He formerly trained animals in Chicago.

LONDON, Jan. 10.-Edith Lanchester, a well-bred girl, confined in an asylum by relatives because she is opposed to matrimony and preferred to live with an admirer without a ceremony in public, made her appearance again before a lunacy commission to urge the prosecution of Dr. Blanford, who declared her of unsound mind and caused her detention in the asylum, for which, when released, she went to live with a fellow-clerk. The commissioners threw the case out of court, deciding that "the Doctor was mistaken, but was not likely to have been improperly influenced or criminally culpable." Miss Lanchester proved to be a prepossessing girl of twenty-four years. She exhibited polished manners, and was distinguished by great modesty. She was becomingly dressed and attracted the greatest interest. Several ladies accompanied her. The barrister who spoke for her declared her an exceedingly well-trained young lady, of sufficient standing to secure three thousand votes for a place on the School Board before her recent experience. At the time of her alleged abduction she was getting her living in a perfectly sane way, as a clerk in a large city house. Dr. Blanford declared her insane on the strength of the following statement: "She says she is going to live with a man below her in station because macriage is immoral. This she argued in a wholly irrational manner. She thinks it is more independent to live like this, but she fails to she will not be independent at all. She persits that she will go and live with this man and go to Australia. Her barrister quoted the works of Dr. Blanford on insanity to show that the lady exhibited none of the symptoms he laid down. Therefore, he alleged, the Doctor said she, "that my views on the marriage views I hold are the same I have held during the last three or four years."

The chairman replied: "It is not charged you suddenly adopted such views."

chester arose and spoke: "I wish to deny,"

"But we are not discussing Dr. Blanford's book," said the chairman. The fair complainant, still undaunted, held her ground and continued to speak. "It is not true," said she, "that I told Dr. Blanford that I was going to live with a man below my station because marriage vas immoral. I did not know who Dr. Blanford was. He was introduced to me brother, as a man of the world, and had no idea he was a doctor. He said very little, but my brother plied me with a of questions, to which it was impossible to give connected answers. My brother said something about the man being beneath me in station and I replied, 'You know I do recognize the question of station.' He is a clerk and I am a clerk, and we are both earning the same salary, so I do not see any inequality. Then something was said about my being left with a half a dozen children. I said it would never happen, but if it did I should not be in a wore position than a married woman who is deserted by her husband."

When she finished her barrister intimated he would carry the case to a higher law court, and it is since rumored that the girl will not rest until she carries the case to the House of Commons, if necessary.

and Local Application.

Philadelphia Telegraph.

President Harrison long ago demonstrated is prominence and forcefulness in controversy. He had not the gift of eloquent oratory, but in speaking or writing he exhib-ited a wealth of thought, of ripe intellectu-ality, such as is possessed by few of our political leaders. His speeches were always better to read than to listen to; the manner of his cratory was not attractive, but the matter of it invariably was. His writings are thoughtful and forcible, and the preduced a proposed series on the subject of 'This Country of Ours," to be contributed to a popular journal, indicates the strength and attractiveness of his writings. What he says in this introductory paper is particularly applicable to existing political conditions in Philadelphia, where political organizations newly sprung into and town meetings are cryaloud for improved municipal government. Sentiment is all very well in politics, says the ex-President and the ablest and shrewdest politician of his time; but, he says, there must not be too much of it, and there must be mixed with it in larger proportion "the prosy routine of a citizen's duty." He assumes that the American citizen is at all times ready, eager, even, to answer a call of his country to the field against an armed enemy. take Tazewell county, Illinois, in 1894, when two He commends that patriotic senti-men were killed and the mine burned. The ment or in pulse, but be thinks a citizen should be just as willing or eager to go to the primaries and to the polls. "The real enemies of our country," says Mr. Harrison, "the dangerous onesare not the armed men, nor armed ships of the great powers. . . We are alert as to foreign foes-the drum-tap rouses the heaviest sleeper. But we are a dull people as to internal assaults upon the integrity and purity of public administration. Salvation Army methods seem to be needed in politico-moral reform." This is the very es-sence of wise counsel to the reformers; they must educate the people that the sordid practical politician in our midst is a more dangerous public enemy than he who thunders at their grites with guns or besets their coasts. The citizen must be taught to listen to the call to the primaries and to the polls as eagerly as to the drum-tap. It has been the practice of citizens to leave the work of political reform to be done by a few earnest men and the newspapers. They have been too busy about their private affairs to attend to public business. Their political enemies have succeeded only because of their own indifference to and neglect of their duty of citizenship. There has never been ness Men's League vs. James R. He has succeeded in collaring not only the backers of the games in operation here, but has also got possession of the books and tickets. Last night patrolman Carter recited some of his experiences in making arrests. He told of one old man, a shoemaker, who is a member of a church on the North Side. When arrested the old man implored him not to compel him to ride in the patrol wagon, and then asked him to keep his name out of the papers. He said: "It would ruin my standing in the church if this were to get out." He made the same plea to the superintendent, who reminded him he ought to have thought of that while engaging in
